ABOUT ME

I am a highly motivated apprentice software analysis and development technologist (ADSO). With a passion for web and mobile application development. I have basic skills in using programming languages such as JavaScript and Python. My academic experience has given me the opportunity to develop social and leadership skills, which has allowed me to work effectively in a team and lead successful projects. I am a proactive, creative person and passionate about continuous learning and constant improvement. Furthermore, I am committed to developing high-quality software solutions and meeting client objectives and requirements. I am confident that my skills, combined with my customer-oriented approach, make me a highly valuable professional on any software development team.
