ABOUT ME

I am a highly motivated Software Analysis and Development-ADSO technologist with a passion for web and mobile application development. With solid experience in the field, I have advanced skills in handling programming languages such as Java, JavaScript and Python, and in the use of technologies such as React, Angular and Node.js. In addition, he has solid knowledge in relational and non-relational databases, and in the implementation of RESTful APIs. My work and academic experience has given me the opportunity to develop social and leadership skills, which has allowed me to work effectively in a team and lead successful projects. I am a proactive, creative person and passionate about continuous learning and constant improvement. Additionally, I am committed to developing high-quality software solutions and meeting client objectives and requirements. I am confident that my experience and skills, combined with my client-oriented approach, make me a highly valuable professional on any software development team.
